4. [REDACTED] (4) Reinsdorf airfield seemed to be deserted. The aircraft dispersal area was empty and the previously observed bomb crates were shipped away. The wind sock was still there. The road blocks were removed. [REDACTED] in front of the billets, where little activity was observed. The tent with two masts was still in the vicinity of the billets. A tractor towing a trailer and a van were observed en route to Jueterbog. The van with the inscription "Grossenhain" was the same one used by the unit when moving to Reinsdorf. (4)

5. On 23 November, the windows of the low wooden buildings at Reinsdorf airfield were boarded up and the landing field was turned over to civilians. A guard detail of 3 to 5 men was quartered in one of the low wooden buildings. (5)

 Comments.

- (1) For sketch of western section of Jueterbog-Altes Lager airfield, see Annex 1. Although the sketch is not to scale, it may be useful, in connection with the maps GSGS, Sheets 3943, 3944, 4043, and 4044, for identifying the location of the individual installations such as the west end of the runway, Adcock DF station, inner landing beacon etc.
- (2) For original document, see Annex 2. No details on this set are available.
- (3) The aircraft are ground attack planes of the ground attack regiment which, according to another source, was transferred from Reinsdorf to Jueterbog on 17 November 1951.
- (4) The statement on the vacated airfield at Reinsdorf agrees with previous information.
